

Press Release

Experienced duo strengthen Riso UK's print production team

Riso UK, the innovative printing solutions company, is expanding its production print team. Javed Iqbal and Lee Clegg are joining the business at a time when demand for its unique products, and in particular the ComColor X1 series of award-winning inkjet printers, is growing rapidly.

Tatsuo Murakami, Managing Director of the Tokyo-based company in the UK, said: "These are exciting times for the business, as more and more people are seeing how they can harness the power of print by using our unique products.

"Our high levels of customer service and personal approach, coupled with unique products that offer low risk, low cost production print enabling customers to increase their productivity levels means that demand for Riso production print/high volume solutions is high. Lee and Javed join a team that is renowned for delivering success and I am confident they too will be a great asset."

Javed, who has returned to the business after spells with other leading companies in the print sector, will be showcasing the ComColor X1 9150 solution to potential new customers and new markets in the North East, West Yorkshire, Midlands, Humberside and Lincoln areas.

Lee Clegg has more than 12 years of experience of introducing print solutions into the graphic arts sectors, with market expertise gained from working in the direct mail industry and graphic communication service providers. Lee, who also has extensive knowledge and experience with web-based print technologies and web2print, will be covering the North West and Midlands.
